AAWCC-CLC Chapter dedicates this month's events to Adriane Hutchinson, Director of Academic Support Services.

Adriane has been CLC's Director of Academic Support Services since July of 2003. Previous to this role, she worked in the private sector and governmental agencies but favors CLC because it allows her to give back to her community. Adriane believes in serving one's local and global community in order to improve the well being of all. As a result, Adriane is committed to helping children, adults, family, and surrounding communities both through her paid work and volunteerism. She has served on the board of directors of Arden Shore Child & Family Services for nearly 10 years and has been involved in numerous grassroots community projects. Adriane's passion for helping others, she says, "started in the womb because my parents were involved in the civil rights movement and believed in social justice." Adriane joined AAWCC when she started working at CLC and has been in charge of Membership. She says the organization has allowed her to network and develop professionally, and adds that AAWCC is important for women to build relationships and achieve equity in gaining valuable leadership skills and experiences. Adriane received her BS in Business Administration from Georgetown University, her MS in Public Service Management from DePaul University and graduate-level certificates in Conflict and Human Resource Management from North Park University. Originally from South Carolina, Adriane resides in Antioch, is married to CLC Sociology faculty Fred Hutchinson and is the mother of their lovely daughter, Jade.
